POSSUMweb is a software tool that helps clinical geneticists diagnose syndromes in their patients. It may also be used to teach doctors and students training in genetics.
The data and images are accessed over the internet, but only clinicians who have been approved to use this software can access it, using a unique username and password.
The database contains information on over 4000 syndromes, including multiple malformation syndromes, chromosomal abnormalities and skeletal dysplasias. It has links to other useful databases and references.

Doctors worldwide use POSSUMweb to help them make diagnoses in their patients, and to help them treat their patients. Many syndromes are very rare, and POSSUMweb gives doctors the opportunity to compare many rare syndromes with their own cases.

The POSSUMweb team is grateful to doctors and families worldwide for their assistance in collecting the best possible information and pictures for the syndromes described.
